The overseas fieldwork curriculum is the only one of its kind in the world, where students spend 180 days traveling and photographing in Asia. Students will acquire the skills needed to become a photographer and a ready-to-work member of society.

During 180 days of overseas fieldwork in Asia, students come into contact with the cultures and people of different countries through photography, broadening their international outlook and their own sense of values, and acquiring the skills needed to become a competent photographer and an immediately effective member of society. Students acquire skills and knowledge in an environment that allows them to thoroughly explore the themes they wish to photograph. In addition, students learn basic photographic techniques and knowledge so that they can cope with all genres of photography, including studio work as well as overseas fieldwork.
